Surface Art, Inc. selects Nextworld & Tesseract Technologies for ERP

Denver, August 30th, 2022 – Tesseract Technologies and Nextworld® announced today that Surface Art, Inc. has selected the Tesseract Tile and Floor Covering enterprise solution built on the Nextworld® no-code platform.

The Tesseract business solution is a complete, end-to-end offering for the Tile and Flooring space that extends Nextworld’s core enterprise applications with functionality tailor-made for the industry. Tesseract will also be delivering integrated Tax Compliance and Transportation Management to meet the needs of this specialty distributor of tile and tile-related products.

It was clear to the Surface Art team that the Tesseract industry solution would be a strategic technology choice for them, as it will evolve with the business into the future. “Surface Art is always on the lookout for a competitive advantage. The automation that Tesseract brings to our company will not only create harmony for our associates but will also allow us to service, communicate, and interact with our customer base far beyond our current capabilities,” says Kevin Stupfel, President of Surface Art, Inc. “We chose Tesseract over their competitors because of the industry knowledge they inhabit and the ability for the system to dynamically adapt to our unique needs, workflows, and spontaneous ideas.”

“We are excited to partner with Surface Art, Inc on their digital transformation journey. They are a perfect flagship client because of their omnichannel sales strategy, multi-state distribution, manufacturing, and fabrication operations. The power of no-code development gives our customers unrivaled levels of customization and integration, creating a bona fide 21st-century company for scalable growth and new business opportunities,” says David Drishpon, CEO of Tesseract Technologies.

Kylee McVaney, CEO of Nextworld, comments, “Core to Nextworld’s strategy is forging partnerships with industry veterans who know the needs of a particular space and can take our enterprise applications the last mile.” McVaney continues, “David and his team have taken decades of Tile and Flooring industry expertise and applied it to an innovative, new solution. We are thrilled to see Tesseract’s traction in the market and to be powering the solution with our enterprise, no-code platform.”
